#1.00 Motion to Approve Compromise Under Rule 9019 with Jason McClure

fr. 12/14/23

Docket 2441

Tentative Ruling:

Prepared on 1/4/24

FOR CLARITY, THE BANKRUPTCY ESTATE OF SHIRLEY McCLURE IS REFERRED TO AS "THE ESTATE," "THE BANKRUPTCY ESTATE," OR "THE DEBTOR'S ESTATE." WHEN MS. McCLURE PASSED AWAY, AN ESTATE WAS CREATED. THIS WILL BE REFERRED TO AS "THE DECEDENT'S ESTATE." AT TIMES FOR EASE OF REFERENCE, DENOTE MS. McCLURE AS "SHIRLEY" AND MR. McCLURE AS "JASON."

The proposed compromise would include all issues pending between the Bankruptcy Estate and the McClure parties [Shirley McClure, Jason McClure, and the Decedent's Estate]. Because Shirley McClure passed away on 6/20/23 and Jason McClure is her only heir, this agreement was reached with him on behalf of his mother and also on his own behalf as to his administrative claim and as to the adversary proceeding against him.

A summary of the terms are as follows:

Jason McClure is to deliver to the Trustee a check for $92,097.41 for a dismissal of the adversary proceeding against him and release of the Estate's interest in the Gregory Property.

Jason McClure is also to deliver to the Trustee a check for $21,264.91 as a return to the Bankruptcy Estate of the Distributed Allowed Administrative Claim that was paid to Shirley McClure. He also waives any further claims against the Bankruptcy Estate on behalf of himself and his mother.

10:00 AM

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

Jason is to dismiss with prejudice each of the following appeals:
Hewitt – District Court 2:23-cv-01982-FWS
Tidus – District Court 2:23-cv-02257-GW
Debtor's administrative expense – District Court 2:23-02840-GW

Releases by the Trustee of any liability of Jason McClure and by Jason McClure of any liability of the Bankruptcy Estate, the Trustees, etc. on behalf of himself and his mother and any other interested parties.

Opposition by Landau Law LLP –

There is no evidence that Jason McClure has the authority to settle any claims. Payments are going to Jason and not to the decedent's estate for distribution to creditors. This refers to the transfer of the Estate's 50% interest in the Gregory house to Jason rather than to the decedent's estate. There is no showing of value. Also the dismissal of the various appeals belong to the decedent's estate and not to Jason, but he is receiving the compensation.

Because there is a non-dischargeable tax claim in excess of $1 million, the decedent's estate and not Jason McClure should receive the title to the house. Jason is not entitled to anything as either the sole heir or the representative of the decedent's estate. This would be a fraud on the State of California.

Jason does not seem to have the authority to dismiss the appeals on the Debtor's behalf. Neither he nor the bankruptcy court have the authority to dismiss the appeals on behalf of Landau Law. And as to the administrative claim appeal, this Court does not have the jurisdiction to evaluate it on the merits, which is necessary before the 9019 motion can be granted.

The record is not complete because not all documents are available.

Reply by Trustee to Landau Law opposition

According to Ms. McClure's will, Jason is named as the executor and the heir to the Gregory Property and to any Residuary Estate. [Ex. 1] Thus he has the right, power, capacity, and authority to settle the claims both individually and as executor of the decedent's estate.

The reply then lays out the chronology concerning the Gregory Property. The joint tenancy was severed to protect the Bankruptcy Estate's interest in the event that Ms. McClure passed away. Under the Severance Order (dk. 2213) the Gregory Property was vested 50% in Jason McClure and 50% in David Gottlieb as the chapter 7 trustee. They became tenants in common. That is the status of title today. Ms. McClure's death does not change that. FRBP 1016.

10:00 AM

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

Thus, neither the Debtor's probate estate nor Ms. McClure are on title to Gregory and the probate estate has no interest.

As to the California Franchise Tax Board, Landau Law has no standing to assert their claim and they have not objected to the settlement. As to the amounts, Landau Law has not provided any evidence to refute the position of the Trustee that the sale of the property would yield about $42,000+ to the Bankruptcy Estate.

Concerning the appeals, Ms. McClure believed that the appeals had value. Certainly the administrative claim did at a minimum of $106,324.56. Also, at this time the deadline for Mr. McClure to substitute in to the appeals has not yet expired and he may still do so. [Court note: that December 11 has passed and one appeal (Landau Law fees) has already been dismissed, one is likely to be dismissed at any time (Hewitt abandonment), and two have status conferences set for February. See table below.]

The agreement provides certainty that Mr. McClure will not do anything to revive the appeals and thus there will be no further administrative expenses as to them.

As to the appeal commenced by Landau Law, that concerns the partial allowance of the Debtor's administrative claim. On 11/30 the district court remanded that to this court. .

As to the documents that are still under seal, Landau Law shows no relevance of them.

TENTATIVE RULING

Landau Law raises several issues. I will deal with each before making the legal findings necessary when a motion for compromise is brought.

Standing of Jason McClure – While counsel for the Trustee has done a craftsman-like job in presenting this motion, he completely ignored the issue of the legality of Jason McClure to enter into agreements on behalf of the Decedent's Estate.

10:00 AM

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

The motion did not even include a copy of Ms. McClure's will, which is the source of Jason's authority. When this was raised in the reply, counsel did attach a copy of the will, but did not consider whether it is admissible. Because no probate has yet been opened, there has been no court determination that Jason McClure is the executor.[1]

A will needs to be authenticated and this can be done by anyone who saw the writing made or executed, including a subscribing witness. Cal. Evid. Code §1413. This hearing was continued to allow the Trustee time to obtain the declarations of at least one person who saw the will being made or executed. He has now filed the declarations of Diego Estevan Perello and of Christina Alejandra Jara, the two subscribing witnesses, who have each testified that this is the document that they saw being signed by Ms. McClure and that they each signed as a witness. (dkt. 2455)

Unless Mr. Landau has a good faith reason to conduct discovery as to their declarations, the Court has the necessary evidence as to the standing of Jason McClure.

The title to Gregory – the Trustee sets forth the record as to the change of title from joint tenancy between Jason McClure and Shirley McClure to tenancy in common between Jason McClure and the Trustee of this Bankruptcy Estate. That was done on various noticed motions for the exact purpose to protect the Bankruptcy Estate's interest should Ms. McClure pass away, particularly given her very poor health. As such, at the time of her death Ms. McClure had no interest in Gregory to be protected through a probate. Jason McClure, as the executor of her will and the residual beneficiary, has the authority to settle the adversary proceeding against him and to purchase the Bankruptcy Estate's interest in Gregory. The price is laid out and the Trustee appears to have done a proper due diligence in reaching that price. If Mr Landau had put in a meaningfully higher appraisal and analysis (see p. 33 of the motion to compromise), the Court would hold an evidentiary hearing on this issue. But neither he nor anyone else has provided any information and the Bankruptcy Estate will gain over twice its net interest upon sale.

The Appeals –

At the time of filing of the compromise motion, five matters were on appeal, with two appeals on one of those. The current status is shown in the following table:

10:00 AM

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

Matter	Appellant	Case #	Date filed	Judge	Disposition
Hewitt Abandonment	McClure	2:23-cv-01982	3/16/2023	Slaughter	12/12/23 - Dismissed without prejudice for failure to prosecute
Tidus Settlement	McClure	2:23-cv-02257	3/28/2023	Wu	Pending – status conference continued to 2/15/23
McClure Administrative Claim	Landau	2:23-cv-02630	4/7/2023	Wu	11/30/23 – orders issued by bankruptcy court set aside and remanded for further proceedings
McClure Administrative Claim	McClure	2:23-cv-02840	4/17/2023	Wu	Pending – status conference continued to 2/15/23
Employment of Shulman	Landau	2:23-cv-03279	3/10/2023	RGK	8/14/23 – Leave to appeal interlocutory order denied. Case closed
Landau Law fees	McClure	22-56223	12/30/2022	9th Cir.	11/16/23 – dismissed for failure to prosecute

As of Summer 2023, Landau Law had two matters as appellant. The district court denied leave to appeal the issue of employment of Mr. Shulman and that appeal was closed. McClure was not a party to that appeal. The other matter is the Landau Law objection to the award of an administrative claim to Debtor. That has now been remanded to the bankruptcy court. All other matters on appeal were brought by Ms. McClure and it is within the power of her representative to bring or concur in motion(s) to dismiss before the district court. [Although as of 12/22/23 the McClure appeal of her administrative claim had not yet been remanded, it is likely to happen because it is the mirror of the Landau one that was remanded. If there is further delay, the Trustee can request that Judge Wu either dismiss or remand the appeal so that the settlement can be consummated.]

As to the Shirley McClure administrative claim, Mr. McClure agrees to dismiss that claim and refund to the Bankruptcy Estate any monies that were distributed because of it. This moots the Landau opposition to my order, which has been remanded.

Payment to the Franchise Tax Board – beyond any issue of whether a non-dischargeable tax claim will be the first priority to be paid, Landau Law has no standing to assert an objection on behalf of the FTB. If it did, Landau Law would still have to show how it is damaged. The Landau Law claim is not non-dischargeable and is a subordinated first priority unsecured claim. So I don't see how it is harmed.

Matters Still Under Seal – On May 1, 2023 as docket #2381, the Court entered an order as to the reason for and handling of documents under seal. This was served on all parties (including Jon L. Dalberg and on Rodger M. Landau, each on behalf of Landau Law) through the Bankruptcy Noticing Center. In part the Order reads as follows:

. . . . Should any person seek to review any or all of the sealed documents while they remain under seal, that person is to file a motion specifying the document(s) to be made available for review and the purpose of the review. Opposition may be filed within 30 days of the filing of the motion. If the Court allows the review, it may demand a signed confidentiality agreement.

No further documents are to be filed under seal without a specific order of this Court.

This order is being created after a review of all sealed documents set forth as such on the docket as well as all sealed documents stored in the court's safe. If other sealed documents exist, please advise the Operations Manager of the San Fernando Valley Division.

Although Mr. Landau has consistently raised the issue of the sealed documents (of which his firm has a copy from the time that they were originally filed and some of which his firm filed on behalf of Mr. Reichman as trustee (see for example #1633, 1634)), he has never filed a motion that they be made available for his review.

The Court finds that these have no relevance to the settlement motion except that granting the motion will automatically unseal them [see the other provisions of dkt. #2381]. However, at the request of Mr. Landau at the initial hearing on this motion, that Court set up a date and a process for him to come to the courthouse and have access to all of the sealed documents. He may or may not have taken advantage of this or requested a change of date or further access.

The Law

In determining whether to approve a compromise under FRBP 9019, the Court must find that it is in the best interest of the Bankruptcy Estate and also that it is fair to creditors. Four areas must be examined and weighed. The compromise need not meet all four criteria, but – on the whole – must balance in favor of the moving party.

"In determining the fairness, reasonableness and adequacy of a proposed settlement agreement, the court must consider:

1) the probability of success of the litigation;

10:00 AM
CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

2) the difficulties, if any, to be encountered in the matter of collection;
3) the complexity of the litigation involved, and the expense, inconvenience and delay necessarily attending it; [and]
4) the paramount interest of the creditors and a proper deference to their reasonable views in the premises."
In re A & C Properties, 784 F.2d 1377, 1380-81 (9th Cir. 1986); United States v. Edwards, 595 F.3d 1004, 1012 (9th Cir. 2010).

Probability of Success

Gregory Property – I believe that the Trustee is being cautious as to the probability of success. He will almost certainly be able to sell this house, giving undivided title to the buyer, but with Mr. McClure being entitled to half the net proceeds. If I understand the terms of Settlement Agreement correctly, Mr. McClure is buying out the Bankruptcy Estate's interest for $92,097.41 and this relieves the Bankruptcy Estate of the need to market the property and protects it from market fluctuations.

Hewitt – The Bankruptcy Estate has nothing to gain by the continuance of the Hewitt appeal in which Ms. McClure appealed the Court's decision to abandon that property to her and thus she (and not the Bankruptcy Estate) will bear the tax burden. But this could be a close call if the appeal continues. At the time I was very conflicted about abandoning this property and thus protecting the Bankruptcy Estate but placing a huge burden on Ms. McClure. The only saving grace was that potentially she could file a new bankruptcy case and the tax claim would be old enough to be discharged. (This solution was suggested by Mr. Landau at the time of the hearing on the motion to abandon.) But that might be years in the future. Should the matter be reversed on appeal, this estate and its creditors would suffer a huge financial blow.

Tidus Appeal – This is the second appeal of the Tidus settlement, the first having been affirmed as to my judgment that it did not meet the minimum amount of recovery for the Bankruptcy Estate. This time Ms. McClure appealed my determination that this one did. The Trustee argues that her appeal was late and that should be the end of the matter. However, even if her appeal was properly filed, the settlement amount was three times as high as the original one and was within my earlier analysis of the value of the case. While nothing is certain, it is most likely that the appeal will be denied and the Tidus Settlement will be affirmed.

Ms. McClure's administrative claim appeal – The settlement moots the administrative claim and requires Jason to return the partial distribution. This is the most that the Bankruptcy Estate could hope for in the litigation.

10:00 AM
CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

Jason McClure's administrative claim – this is being dismissed, which is the most that the Bankruptcy Estate could hope for.

Collection Difficulties – there are no collection difficulties. The property transfer is only final when Jason McClure pays the agreed to amount and the dismissals take place.

Complexity of the Litigation and expense, inconvenience, and delay needed – As noted above, the Hewitt matter is somewhat complex and will take time to go through the two level appeal process. There is no certainty. It is possible that the Bankruptcy Estate could be stuck with a large administrative tax bill.

Beyond that, sorting out the administrative claims of Shirley McClure and of Jason McClure will continue to be time-consuming and each would require an evidentiary hearing or more than one hearing. As has been shown in this case, whatever decisions are made would most-likely result in appeals. The settlement resolves all of this with no liability to the Bankruptcy Estate.

Paramount interest of the creditors and a proper deference to their reasonable views – Although one creditor (Landau Law) has objected, no other creditor has done so. Silence is consent.

It is clear that this compromise is very beneficial to the Bankruptcy Estate. The only asset being compromised is the Gregory Property. All other parts of the settlement are removing potential liabilities. The Gregory Property would have to be hugely undervalued for the Bankruptcy Estate to net more than it will under the settlement. Further, the Bankruptcy Estate is receiving the return of $21,000+ from the distribution of the Debtor's administrative claim and that will boost the pot of assets that are available for distribution. Landau Law does not argue that the valuation of Gregory is incorrect or provide any evidence of a higher value. His arguments are technical legal issues and are dealt with elsewhere.

This compromise will bring to a close the most litigious issues in this decade-old bankruptcy case. While there are still a variety of administrative items to resolve and some may result in appeals, the removal of these particular items from the unresolved list will go a long way toward making a distribution to creditors and

The Court has vacated the hearing on dkt. 2127. If there is mixed up evidence, we can take care of it at the hearing on the motion. As noted, additional evidence is required to rule on this motion. I am aware of delays due to the death of Ms. McClure. Prior tentative ruling 5/16/23
For some reason, Mr. Williams filed this motion twice as dkt. 2127 and 2140. Some of the responses were filed under one number and some under the other. This makes for a very confusing docket.

Mr. Williams, please go through the two dockets (you can see the list of documents on CM/ECF using the "report" tab and then "motions and related filings" and provide my courtroom deputy with a list of duplicates. Admin Claim of Jason McClure [dkt. 2140, 2129, 2130] [dkt. 2127]

Shirley McClure was the Debtor-in-Possession from the filing of this case at the end of 2012 until a chapter 11 trustee was appointed in August 2016. The case was converted to chapter 7 on May 24, 2022. Jason McClure, her son, provided substantial benefit to the estate by providing loans, services and paying expenses. He allowed payment of funds owed to him from Carrera to be used to benefit and preserve the estate. The Court was aware of this.

Carrera is a corporation owned by Jeffrey McClure, Jason's older brother. At the time of the filing of this case, there were 16 properties used as residential rentals. Of these, ten had notices of default. The cash collateral agreement required 100% interest payments on seven of the properties and somewhat lower payments on the other three properties. There had to be an immediate infusion of funds for the case to survive.

As of the petition date, Jason was owed $225,000 by Carrera for pre-petition services. Jason had Carrera redirect this to the estate to preserve the estate's assets. Jason also provided labor and services directly to the estate and paid ongoing critical expenses of the estate.

11 USC § 503(a) allows actual and necessary costs and expenses of preserving the estate to be deemed to be administrative claims. These are claims that have arisen with the DIP and directly and substantially benefitted the estate. In re Dak Indus., 66 F.3d 1091 (9th Cir. 1995).

Jason is an insider and had no management role as to the administration of the chapter 11 case. And he is not a professional as defined by §327(a). Except for the property on Gregory, in which he is a 50% owner, he was not acting in his own self-interest – he was acting to protect his mother. He has not benefitted from the substantial contribution that he made. He spent large amounts of uncompensated time and thus forfeited market rate jobs that he could have taken. He expected to be reimbursed. To the extent that he was working in his self-interest, this does not preclude reimbursement. In re Cellular 101, Inc., 377 F.3d 1092, 1098 (9th Cir. 2004).

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

Jason's claim is documented and was reported in the DIPS' MORs such as the September-October 2014 MOR that has a detailed chart itemizing Ms. McClure's family's contributions in increasing the monthly rental income substantially as well as the substantial increase in the rental properties' value. The estate had no funds to hire a market rate contractor to provide the work.

Jason is a creditor as defined by §101(10). His contributions were substantial, made under extraordinary circumstances, and provided a substantial contribution to preserving the estate. They allowed the case to continue under chapter 11, enabled the rental properties to increase their monthly rental income and also to increase in value. His contribution to accountant and attorney fees enabled Shirley to reach a settlement with the Franchise Tax Board. He had to agree to drop his challenge to the FTB and incur $50,000 in assessments. This saved the estate over $200,000.

Jason, Jeffrey and Shirley ran a "mom and pop" rental business from 2007. Providing money and services is part of the ordinary course of a "mom and pop" business and in their family practice. Under §363(c)(1), no prior court approval is needed for the DIP to use estate property in the ordinary course of business.

Jason's Administrative claim breaks down as follows:

1. Funds that he re-directed from Carrera to and on behalf of the estate:
   Post-petition payments Carrera made on Jason's behalf directly to the Estate - $73,777.89
   Post-petition payments Carrera made on Jason's behalf to third parties on behalf of the Estate - $174,569.75
   But because Jason was only entitled to receive $225,000 from Carrera, that is the total amount of his administrative claim from this source.
2. Beyond the monies he contributed from the Carrera funds, Jason also contributed $28,836.55 directly to the Estate and made payments to third parties on behalf of the Estate in the amount of $19,530. This is a total of $48,366.55.
3. There were in-kind contributions totaling $208,600.00.

The total claim is $481,966.55.

Opposition by Weintraub & Selth [dkt. 2163]

This should be denied because creditors and the trustee were never given an opportunity to evaluate and be heard as to the alleged loans and advances. Also, the alleged loans and advances were not authorized by the Court. There is insufficient evidence. This request is long after the alleged loans were made.

Section 364 requires a notice and hearing. This is especially true when the proposed lender is an insider or the debtor herself. These are not "ordinary course" loans and would not be approved as such. Therefor the loan transaction may be relegated to unsecured status or cancelled or disregarded.

Opposition by Chapter 7 Trustee [dkt. 2165]

This motion was brought under §503(b)(3)(F) or (b)(4). Jason does not qualify under either section. There was no committee and he is not an attorney or accountant.

As to §503(b)(1)(A), he needs to show that the debt arose from a transaction with the estate and that it directly and substantially benefited the estate. The burden is on Jason McClure to show that his claim (1) arose from a transaction with the estate and (2) directly and substantially benefited the estate. Noah Bagel Corp. V Smith (In re BCE W), 319 F.3rd 1166, 1172 (9th Cir. 2003). In fact, there is little evidence to support that Jason McClure contributed anything to the estate and that the estate benefited from any of these supposed contributions.

What is really happening here is that Jason made unsecured loans to the estate that he now wants to be repaid as administrative priorities. There was no court approval and these were not in the nature of ordinary course of business transactions.

Section 364 can obtain unsecured debt as an administrative priority only if it is in the ordinary course of business. Otherwise it needs court approval after notice and a hearing. There are two tests: the vertical dimension, or creditor's expectation, test and the horizontal dimension. This fails to meet either test.

The vertical dimension is seen from the vantage point of a hypothetical creditor and inquires whether the transaction subjects a creditor to economic risks of a nature different from those he accepted when he decided to extend the loan. Courts tend to look at the debtor's pre-petition business practices compared to the post-petition ones. Jason argues that prepetition they had a "mom-and-pop" arrangement and supported each other without contracts or written repayment terms. There is no evidence of these prepetition business practices to show that the post-petition ones were consistent with them.

The horizontal dimension looks at the practices of similar businesses. There is no evidence that the behavior of loaning money, providing services to each other, and co-signing loans for each other was normal in a mom-and-pop business. While the loaning of money and providing services between the McClures might meet that requirement, Jason McClure fails to identify what loans were extended, the terms of the loans, whether there was an amount outstanding, or any other details that are typical of real estate transactions. He fails to specifically identify how these funds benefited the estate and its creditors. It is unreasonable to expect creditors to anticipate that the debtor will incur hundreds of thousands of dollars in debt for support from her son solely because they run a mom and pop rental business. No notice was given to creditors or the estate so that there could be an objection to the terms of the loans.

These alleged loans were not incurred in the ordinary course of business and cannot be allowed as an administrative expense.

As to the expense of $225,000 for directing Carrera to pay to the estate funds that it owes to Jason, there was no written agreement between the estate and Jason McClure that his compensation assignment was to be treated as a loan rather than a gift. Jason was not employed by the estate or empowered by the court to act on behalf of the estate in any capacity. The exhibits itemizing expenses and services rendered do not show who drafted them or whether these expenses and services are legitimate. There is no evidence that Mr. McClure was the one who performed the services listed in exhibit 1.3 and there was no contractual agreements or communications between Mr. McClure and a representative Carrera evidencing that Carrera hired Mr. McClure or that there was a subsequent assignment between Carrera and Mr. McClure of Mr. McClure's compensation to the estate. Further, it is unlikely that these transactions benefited the estate because many of them show a personal benefit by the purchases made on behalf of the estate.

10:00 AM

As to the payments for the DIP's business including hardwood floor repairs, utility expenses, unlawful detainer representation for a rental property, and legal expenses, these transactions were made by Carrera and not by Mr. McClure. Ex. 1.2 shows that many of the expenses paid by Carrera were made by Carrera and not Jason. So Carrera would be the proper administrative creditor Therefore, the administrative expense, if there is one, belongs to Carrera and not to Mr. McClure.

Concerning the administrative expense for $28,836.55, some of the MOR's only show that these monies were received from "family". There is no evidence that he is the unidentified family member that contributed these funds or that he can directly trace the funds from his account to the estate's account. And there was no court approval to borrow these funds, which is required by section 364. There is nothing that shows that these funds were loans and would actually have to be repaid.

As to the administrative expense for $19,530 to pay professionals on behalf of the estate, no cashier's checks (or other checks) are provided as evidence. Beyond that, there was no prior court approval for any loan and that is fatal.

The claim for $208,600 for "in kind" contributions for services allegedly rendered and payments that he made to other laborers who assisted him on behalf of the estate is unsupported by evidence of these projects, such as contractual agreements between him and the debtor. He does not explain the value of the commission or labor for these projects or provide evidence that his services increased the sales price or that these services were actually rendered. And no court approval was ever obtained authorizing his retention and compensation under section 327. Beyond that, as an insider, he is not entitled to compensation in a Chapter 11 absent notice of setting of compensation to creditors section 503(c).; LBR Rule 2014-1.

Opposition by Landau Law [dkt. 2168]

Factual Issues:

#1 - Shirley McClure did not reveal that there were any administrative claims owing to Jason McClure. This was not included as an administrative claim in Ms. McClure's first disclosure statement filed in October 2013. On

10:00 AM

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

December 20 2013 she filed her first amended disclosure statement which also failed to mention a claim of any kind held by Jason McClure. At that time, Jason McClure contends that he was already owed an administrative claim of approximately $230,000. This would have quadrupled the amount of administrative claims against the bankruptcy estate from the $75,000 disclosed in the second disclosure statement. On May 3rd 2016, Shirley McClure filed another disclosure statement which also does not make mention of any claim held by Jason McClure against the estate.

There are other instances where Ms. McClure gave sworn testimony that Jason McClure did not possess the claim that he now asserts.

#2 - as to the money from Carrera enterprises, Jason states that the money was owed to him by Carrera from the sale of a piece of real property in Bakersfield, CA. However, it was not Carrera that purchased the property in the spring of 2010, but Shirley McClure who did so. Soon after purchasing the Bakersfield property, Ms. McClure conveyed a lien on the property to Carrera, which was an entity owned 50-50 by Ms. McClure and her late son Jeffrey McClure. Shirley McClure remained the sole owner of the property through August 2012 at which point she transferred the Bakersfield property to Carrera. To the extent that Jason actually worked on the Bakersfield property, that work had to have been for the benefit of Shirley McClure and not of Carrera since Carrera was only a mortgagee of the property. Therefore at least $125,000 of the $225,000 allegedly owed to Jason for work performed on the Bakersfield property never could have been owed by Carrera.

The monies that Carrera transferred to the bankruptcy estate were from a distribution to Shirley McClure based on her 50% pre-petition interest in Carrera. This was not a loan and was not from Jason McClure. This is demonstrated by the retainer received by Greenberg and Bass which stated that the firm received $131,460 retainer and the source of that was from the debtor. "As set forth in the debtor's schedules, debtor has a 50% interest in a corporation known as Carrera Enterprises, Inc. Prior to the filing of the Petition, Carrera sold a parcel of property. The retainer came from the proceeds that debtor received as a 50% owner of Carrera. The funds were not and are not subject to any lien or incumbrance." [docket 24 page 2; see also docket 104 paragraph 7]. Landau Law also notes that Carrera paid

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

Greenberg and Bass a portion of its retainer, being approximately $81,000, prior to the filing of this bankruptcy case. [Docket #82 page three.]

Therefore this money was not a loan from Carrera or Jason McClure. Had it been so, Shirley McClure would have been obligated to list the debt owed to Carrera or to Jason McClure on her bankruptcy schedules, which she did not do.

In October 2019, Ms. McClure sought the return of the entire $125,000 prepayment retainer that was paid to Greenberg by Carrera, affirming that the funds were proceeds of her exempt partnership interest in Carrera. [Docket number 1722, page 16.]

#3 - Jason McClure did not have the ability or resources to lend the bankruptcy estate hundreds of thousands of dollars, with or without a loan agreement and court approval. In September 2013, Shirley McClure filed a motion for authority to pay Jason $22,750 for his 5% interest in one of the properties jointly owned with him and stated that Jason McClure requires cash for living expenses, including [child] support." Jason filed his own declaration stating that he has requested Shirley to purchase his 5% in the the La Mirada property in exchange for $22,750 because he needed the funds to cover his child support obligation, necessary repairs and maintenance to his work vehicle, related expenses and miscellaneous living expenses. At that point he was $6400 in arrears on his child support obligation. [Docket number 234, p. 9] Further it appears from the debtor's monthly operating reports that Shirley was paying for a variety of Jason's hobbies including running and bowling.

Legal issues

#1 - the debt claimed was never authorized and was not in the ordinary course of business as set forth in Bankruptcy Code section 364. Where there is no court approval to obtain unsecured credit outside the ordinary course of business, the debt is cancelled by the court. Shirley McClure is not contending that there was court approval. Therefore the debt must have been in the ordinary course of business.

The court looks at two tests to determine whether the loan was in the ordinary course of business. Using the vertical test, one looks at the history of the transactions, namely the pre-petition and post-petition conduct. Here there is no evidence that Jason McClure ever loaned Shirley McClure any money pre-petition and it appears he did not do so at least in the year prior to bankruptcy. The debtor's schedules do not list any debt owed to Jason McClure at the time of the filing or any payments to him within the year prior to her bankruptcy filing. In looking at the expectation of creditors, the creditors successfully opposed Shirley McClure's motion to purchase Jason's property interest And they did not expect her to enter into financial transactions with her relatives at will.

Looking at the horizontal test, one reviews industry practice. The burden is on the movant to do this. Just because Shirley and Jason are mother and son is not sufficient to establish or meet a standard of ordinary course.

#2 - Jason McClure is not a creditor and therefore cannot hold an administrative claim under section 503(b)(3)(d) or (b)(4). If a claimant is not a creditor or one of the other entities listed in section 503, the claimant is ineligible as a matter of law to receive a claim under those sections. To meet the definition of creditor, Jason had to have had a pre-petition claim that existed on December 21 2012, the date of the order of relief. He was never listed as a creditor on Shirley McClure's schedules or on any of her three disclosure statements; he did not file a claim before the claims bar date that was set in the Chapter 11 of October 1, 2013. He did not file a claim before the claims bar date set in a Chapter 7 of September 9, 2022. He does not meet any of the other definitions of a creditor.

#3 - Jason McClure is an insider of Shirley McClure and thus was required to meet the requirements in order to obtain compensation. Under local bankruptcy rule 2014-1(a), no compensation may be paid to an insider of the debtor until a notice describing the insider's proposed compensation is served on the United States Trustee etc. This was not done. The ninth circuit has held that an insider's dealings with a bankrupt corporation must be subjected to rigorous scrutiny. The burden is on the insider not only to prove the good faith of the transaction but also to show its inherent fairness from the viewpoint of the debtor and those interested therein. In Re Marquam INVU Corp, 942 F.2nd 1462 (9th Cir. 1991).

Therefore Jason is not entitled to be compensated for any work that he may have performed for the benefit of the bankruptcy estate.

Mr. Landau, as he has previously requested, seeks a criminal referral.

Supplemental Declaration of Shirley McClure [dkt. 2256]

This contains the following exhibits:

1. A transcript of the 9/9/14 hearing showing the efforts of Mr. Litt and his attorney to tank the chapter 11 and get rid of the state court action.
2. A 12/13/12 email with the real estate agent as to 30th Street showing that the current tenants offered to purchase for $1.4 million, but wanted a credit of $108,813 for work to be done. They left the property, but Jason did the work by 3/1/13 and shortly thereafter it sold for $1,625,000.
3. A transcript of 8/8/14 where the real estate agent advised the court that repair, painting, and staging of Hewitt had a value of over $12,000.

This is in support of the construction work that he did. The exhibits to his original declaration [dkt. 2129] show the construction work that he did to specific properties and the expenditures that he made on behalf of the estate.

Declaration of Elena Rivera on C Street Property

She and her husband own a janitorial service and do construction site clean-up, etc. They provided these services to the debtor. Jason would pay for her to fly to the job site in IN or MI and provide for her food and lodging. In San Francisco, she and her helper would drive up with Jason, who provided food and lodging.

As to C street, it closed in 2010 and was a mess. Jason took almost 2 years to rebuild it. He served as the contractor and directed the subcontractors. She lists the work that was done. She also did work for Jason on the Carrera Gregory projects that started before the C Street renovation.

repairing and staging unit #102.

Trustee's Objection [dkt. 2288]

The Trustee objects on a variety of grounds, but the real issue here is relevance. No one is objecting that Jason did quality work on the units. The issue is whether he should be paid for that work because it was not approved by the court and did not benefit the estate. The work done prepetition is not allowed as an administrative claim. The work done to repair the unit between tenants seems to be normal maintenance. Mr. Roney does not add anything as to the cost incurred for this or for preparing it for a sale that never happened.

Declaration of Andrew McClure as to Ostego

Andrew McClure is Jason's adult son. He lived in Michigan and personally observed Jason repairing the tornado damage on Ostego.

Trustee's Supplemental Response to Jason McClure's Supplement to Motion for Administrative Claim [dkt. 2285]

Jason has failed to provide evidence that he directly and substantially contributed anything to the estate and that any such contributions benefitted the estate.

Any prepetition work cannot constitute an administrative claim. This specifically includes work done on Feldshaw and Ostego. As to work on various properties, Jason fails to provide clear evidence identifying his specific construction and renovation contributions that arose from a transaction with the estate and directly and substantially benefited the estate as to each property. The Trustee then describes each of the 8 properties that Shirley listed for sale as a DIP. [Court: there are actually 10 properties on p.7 because 910 Corbett consists of 3 separate condominiums.]

The issues as to each property are discussed in the objection to the declarations or repeats from prior filings and are not summarized here.

Jason McClure's Reply to Supplemental Oppositions [dkt. 2299]

Jason is not seeking payment for pre-petition work. The information as to pre-petition work was provided only for background to show that he has worked diligently to enhance the Estate's properties.

Besides the earlier filings, Jason has provided substantial evidence that his work directly and substantially benefitted the Estate. Each of the properties was sold and generated income for the Estate. Unlike In re Marquam Inv. Corp, cited in the Landau supplemental opposition, Jason has provided tangible services with detailed summaries of expenses and work performed and also photographic evidence to that effect.

10:00 AM

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

ANALYSIS

For Jason McClure (Jason or Mr. McClure) to obtain an administrative claim, he must traverse a road with a variety of branches. At each branch, if he does not meet the legal and factual requirements, his claim is shunted to the side and either becomes an unsecured claim or is totally disallowed. Unfortunately, this appears to be an administratively insolvent estate, so it may not matter whether the claim that is diverted to a side road is determined to be unsecured or disallowed. But we are not there yet.

Jason's claim falls into three categories, each with its own requirements. But there are a few factual and legal findings that are relevant to all of them.

1. Jason McClure is an insider. §101(31)(A)(1).

2. An administrative claim can be awarded "after notice and a hearing" for the "actual, necessary costs and expenses of preserving the estate," which includes wages, salaries, and commissions for services. §503(1)(A).

3. The claim must be for something that directly and substantially benefitted the estate. Noah Bagel Corp. V Smith (In re BCE W), 319 F.3rd 1166, 1172 (9th Cir. 2003)

4. The burden of proving an administrative expense claim is on the claimant. Microsoft Corp. v. DAK Indus. (In re DAK Indust.), 66 F.3d 1091, 1094 (9th Cir. 1995)

5. The Debtor-in-Possession may incur unsecured debt in the ordinary course of business and that is allowable as an administrative claim under §501(b)(1), §364(a)

10:00 AM
CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

6. No compensation may be paid to insiders in Chapter 11 until the Debtor files a Notice of Insider Compensation. LBR 2104-1

7. If the unsecured debt is not in the ordinary course of business, the unsecured debt will only be an administrative claim if it is authorized by the court after notice and a hearing. §364(b)

8. "After notice and a hearing" does not require an actual hearing if the opportunity for a hearing is appropriate to the circumstances and no hearing is timely requested by a party in interest. §102(1)

Funds from Carrera - $225,000; Funds from Jason - $48,366.55.

This consists of funds transferred by Carrera to the Estate on Jason's behalf ($73,777.89) and payments made by Carrera on Jason's behalf to third parties ($174,569.75). Ceiling limit is $225,000, which is the maximum of Jason's interest in Carrera.

There is an issue as to whether the funds labeled as "from Carrera" were actually owned by Carrera, property of Jason, or property of Shirley. The paper trail is laid out in Jason's declaration [dkt. 2129, ex. 1.1, 1.2]. Although this does not include original books and records or copies of canceled checks, the Court can accept these statements as true unless the Court finds that payments made by Carrera qualify as the basis for an administrative claim by Jason. But, as more fully discussed concerning monies contributed directly by Jason, the initial issue is whether these were loans or gifts and, if they were loans, were they in the ordinary course of business.

Jason argues that it is both normal in a "mom-and-pop" business for money to be freely transferred between the family members. But he provides no evidence that this is a normal part of such businesses. Nor does he successfully demonstrate that this is, in fact, a "mom-and-pop" business and that it was a normal activity for such transfers to be made. The real properties in question were owned solely by Shirley. Jason, her son, had no legal claim to them, although he appears to have had a 5% interest in a few of them. But, as her son, he certainly had a moral imperative to assist her in her endeavors, as well as a selfish reason so that she would be financially independent of him and his family. But this does not make him a part of her business and it does not transmute HER business into a shared "mom-and-pop" company.

So, while Jason was not a stranger, he was not a direct part of the business. However, this does not mean that the transfers of money and doing the work was not in the ordinary course of Shirley's business. While the Court has some evidence that pre-petition Jason provided services, there is nothing showing him loaning Shirley money to run the business.

Looking at the two articulated tests as to §364, the hypothetical creditor had financial data from Shirley when she took out the mortgages to buy these properties. The history of this case is that the monies came from the some $9 million that Shirley received due to a settlement of her lawsuit with Long Beach. She invested much of it in purchasing these properties, most or all of which were purchases of rental properties with outstanding senior liens that Shirley assumed. No evidence has been put forward to show that the loan applications included money from Jason. It is possible that Shirley revealed her interest in Carrera, but Carrera is not the creditor seeking this administrative claim – Jason is. There is also no evidence that one who owns multiple single family houses or condominiums was habitually loaned money by relatives in order to prevent defaults, provide repairs, maintain the various properties, make mortgage payments, etc. I am sure that this happens in some families, but there is no evidence that it is a common and expected practice that the creditors would expect.

Thus, the transfers of money from Carrera and from Jason do not meet the requirements of being administrative claims.

The other question is whether they were loans or gifts. There is no evidence to support that these were loans (albeit unsecured loans) and therefore for the purposes of this claim they must be considered to be gifts. Shirley had a certain level of sophistication and certainly knew that loans are usually documented by promissory notes or at least memoranda and letters. We have none of these in evidence. Did she and Jason intend that these would be gifts? Perhaps. It is more likely that they expected a large profit from the sales of these properties or, at least, from the income derived from the rents. In that way Jason would be repaid to some extent. But this is mere guesswork on my part.

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has set forth what might meet Jason's burden. In In Re Marquam INV. Corp., 942 F.2d 1462 (9th Cir. 1991), Marquam Corp. owned an office building and several unimproved properties. Warde Erwin, owner of 60% of the Marquam shares of stock, was president of Marquam Corp. and his son Charles was a vice-president and manager of Marquam. Warde and Charles Erwin practiced law as Erwin & Erwin, P.C. The creditor had been a tenant of Marquam and when Marquam sought to evict her to tear down her house, she sued Marquam. Eventually she won and had a judgment for general and punitive damages. Warde filed the Marquam bankruptcy and also a claim in the case on behalf of Erwin & Erwin for attorney fees for defending Marquam on the state court litigation.

The bankruptcy court found no documentary evidence that Marquam intended to pay Erwin & Erwin attorney fees, but still held – based on oral testimony – that such was the case. The district court reversed and the Ninth Circuit affirmed the district court, largely based on the lack of documentary evidence. The testimony of Warde Erwin that Marquam intended to pay Erwin & Erwin for its work did not meet the burden of rigorous scrutiny placed on an insider.

Jason McClure is an insider to Shirley McClure. And as much as the Court sympathizes and would like to award him the administrative claim that he seeks, he has failed to meet his burden, both as to an administrative claim and as to an unsecured claim.

In-kind contributions - $208,600

Unlike the monetary contributions, there is extensive evidence that Jason provided quality services in the area of maintenance and repair of some or all of the properties. It makes sense that someone who owns properties for rental or sale must provide maintenance and repairs and also extra services to prepare the properties for new tenants or for sale. These were certainly in the ordinary course of Shirley's business and Jason is entitled to reimbursement for payments he made to others and for materials that he purchased. But these all need to be documented in a way that the Court can ascertain who or what they were and for which properties and which services.

As to Jason's own work, this falls under Local Bankruptcy Rule (LBR)

LBR 2014-1 [Employment of Debtor's Principals in Chapter 11 Cases, and Professional Persons][1]

(1) Notice of Setting/Increasing Insider Compensation. No compensation or other remuneration may be paid from the assets of the estate to a debtor's owners, partners, officers, directors, shareholders, or relatives of insiders as defined by 11 U.S.C. § 101(31), from the time of the filing of the petition until the confirmation of a plan nor may approved compensation be increased unless the debtor serves a Notice of Setting/Increasing Insider Compensation ("Notice") in accordance with procedures adopted by the United States trustee pursuant to this rule.

(2) Service of Notice. The debtor must: (A) serve the Notice on the United States trustee, the creditors' committee or the 20 largest creditors if no committee has been appointed, any other committee appointed in the case, counsel for any of the foregoing, and any secured creditor that claims an interest in cash collateral, and

(B) provide proof of service to the United States trustee. As a non-filed document, the Notice does not result in the generation and delivery of an NEF, and therefore consent to electronic service via NEF on the United States trustee and other CM/ECF Users is not applicable to the Notice.

(3) Payment of Insider Compensation. An insider may receive compensation or other remuneration from the estate if no objection is received within 14 days after service of the Notice. An insider may receive an increase in the amount of insider compensation or other remuneration previously approved if no objection is received within 30 days after service of the Notice.

10:00 AM

CONT... Shirley Foose McClure Chapter 7

(4) Objection and Notice of Hearing. If an objection is timely received, the debtor must set the matter for hearing. The debtor must file a true and correct copy of the Notice, objection, and the original notice of hearing. The debtor must serve not less than 21 days notice of the date and time of the hearing on the objecting party and the United States trustee.

LBR 2014-1 is unique to the Central District of California and is not linked to any national rule that requires notice of insider compensation.

The Court finds no record of a Notice of Insider Compensation for Jason and therefore, under a strict enforcement of LBR 2014-1, he is not entitled to remuneration for his time or work. But in this case it is clear that he performed some services on behalf of the DIP and Estate and he is entitled to reasonable compensation for those services. The Court agrees with Judge Kwan in his unpublished opinion in In re L. Scott Apparel, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 1303, CACB, Jan. 29, 2019 that the insider should have followed the notice provisions of LBR 2014-1, but, "this court will not deny Sharron's administrative claim solely on procedural grounds, and instead elects to address Sharron's claim on its merits to determine whether it is an allowable administrative expense claim for services which were necessary and beneficial to the estate under 11 U.S.C. § 503(b)." at *210.

However, even if such a notice does exist, the Court will need accurate and detailed time records as well as information on the normal rate of compensation for someone at his skill level.

Yet another issue is whether Jason's time and labor were meant to be a gift to the Estate. That can be demonstrated by both the pre-petition actions of Shirley in paying him and also the post-petition ones. Evidence is necessary on this matter.

The other component is the amount of money that he paid to subcontractors and for materials. These are not insider compensation and are debts of the Estate. If a non-insider worker had been hired to perform a task – such as painting the inside of one of the properties of the Estate – and was not paid at the conclusion of his task, he would have an administrative claim against the Estate. If that worker had assigned its claim to a third party who paid him, the assignee would then own the administrative claim. There is no reason to treat Jason any differently from that assignee. But he must provide admissible evidence of what he paid, when, to whom, for which property, and for what specific work. Receipts, cancelled checks, declarations of workers, written contracts, etc. can assist in the accounting that he is required to provide. The claim will only be allowed to the extent that it is supported by these documents.

As to the issue of whether the work was actual and necessary to preserving the estate and substantially benefitted the Estate, the parties seem to have taken a detour off the road by dealing with whether the properties increased in value when sold. First of all, there is no way to know whether the increase was due to Jason's work or to market fluctuation or other factors. As noted above, was the price increase on 30th Street because of the work or because the tenant made a below-market offer due to the filing of the bankruptcy? There is no way to know.

Beyond that, also as noted above, the assets of the Estate were residential properties. If they were occupied, it was necessary to provide maintenance and repairs. If they were vacated, they needed to be cleaned and refreshed and made rentable. If they were to be sold, they needed freshening, staging, etc. All of this was part of the ordinary business of this Debtor, they were actual and necessary, the substantially benefitted the Estate even if the property did not sell, and those providing the services are entitled to compensation.
